HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
AND
Hoofland's German Tonic.
The Great Remedies for all Diseases of the LIVER, STOMACH, OR DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
Is composed of the pure juices (or, as they are medically termed, Extracts,) of Roots, Herbs, and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from alcoholic admixture of any kind.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,
Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, &c., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.
Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.
Those who have no objection to the combination of the bitters, as stated, will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.
They are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues, the choice between the two being a mere matter of taste, the Tonic being the most palatable.
The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, etc., is very apt to have its functions deranged. The Liver, sympathizing as closely as it does with the stomach, then becomes affected, the result of which is that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

The sufferer from these diseases should exercise the greatest caution in the selection of a remedy for his case, purchasing only that which he is assured from his investigation and inquiries possesses true merit, is skillfully compounded, is free from injurious ingredients, and has established for itself a reputation for the cure of these diseases. In this connection we would submit those well known remedies—

AND
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,
Prepared by DR. C. M. JACKSON,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Twenty-two years since they were first introduced into this country from Germany, during which time they have undoubtedly performed more cures, and benefited suffering humanity to a greater extent, than any other remedies known to the public.
These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa, Diseases of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a disordered Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY,
Resulting from any Cause whatever; PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, induced by Severe Labor, Hardships, Exposure, Fevers, etc.
There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole system, the appetite is strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

PERSONS ADVANCED IN LIFE,
And feeling the handof time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shattered forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE.
It is a well established fact that fully one half of the female portion of our population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health; or, to use their own expression, never feel well. They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.
To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN,
Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.
Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. Those, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed,

TESTIMONIALS.
HON. GEORGE W. WOODWARD,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes:
Philadelphia, March 18, 1767.
"I find 'Hoofland's German Bitters' is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the system.
Yours, truly, GEO. W. WOODWARD."

HON. JAMES THOMPSON,
Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
Philadelphia, April 23, 1866.
"I consider 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours, with respect, JAMES THOMPSON."

FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D. D.,
Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.
Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear conscience and particularly in the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual custom, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.
Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates St.

FROM REV. E. D. FENDALL,
Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.
I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic, to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.
Yours truly,
E. D. FENDALL.

FLOWERS.

The welcome flowers are blossoming,
In joyous troops revealed;
They lift their dowy buds and bells
In garden, mead, and field.
They lurk in every sunless path
Where forest children tread;
They dot like stars the sacred turf
Which lies above the dead.

They sport with every playful wind
That stirs the blooming trees,
And laugh on every fragrant bush
All full of toiling bees;
From the green marge of lake and stream,
Fresh vale and mountain sod,
They look in gentle glory forth,
The pure, sweet flowers of God.
—LYONS.

THE GOVERNOR'S STORY.

We were very poor, said the Governor, my mother and I. We lived in a little cabin on General Linton's farm, and saw a hard time. My father had died when I was sixteen years old, leaving us nothing but an honest reputation; and, although I was stout and healthy, my wages were very low, and I had to toil late and early to provide the necessaries of life. But I suppose I would have been happy and contented enough; that is, as much so as we unsatisfied mortals usually are, if it hadn't been for a woman. I don't know why it was that Helen Linton made such an impression upon me, for she had by no means those great and noble qualities by which men, as a general thing, are attracted toward the opposite sex. On the contrary she was proud, arrogant and overbearing, and I was confident if she thought of me at all, it was with feelings of contempt and disdain alone. Not on account of my personal appearance, it is true; for though I was rough and uncultivated, and my hands were hard with excessive toil, and my face browned by exposure to the sun, still I had wonderful strength and great ability, and my hair and eyes were as dark as midnight, and many said that I was handsome. But I was poor and she was wealthy; I was General Linton's hired hand, and she was General Linton's daughter, and it was the old, old story. It must have been her bewildering beauty that drew me more and more toward her; for she was a queenly looking girl, with flashing eyes and magnificent dark brown hair, and a form tall and majestic and stately. But whatever it might have been, I am certain of one thing, and that is, that I learned to love her with a painful consuming passion that seemed about to devour my whole being. I tried very hard to smother it and to drive her image from my heart. I knew I might as well think of plucking down the moon or the stars, as to have dared to aspire to her hand. But it was all of no avail, and the more I struggled the more I became entangled, until at length, morning, noon and night, there was but one face that I saw, and but one voice that I heard, and that was the face and the voice of Helen Linton. What was worst of all to me, in some way she discovered my secret. How I can hardly tell. They say murder will out, and the same can most assuredly be said about love. I had never spoken about it to any one, not even to my mother, and as to Helena, I had scarcely ever spoken to her on any subject. It is true that some times she would give me instructions in regard to the flower garden, which General Linton had selected me to manage, having, as he said, a better opinion of my taste in such matters than any of the rest of his workmen, but she never condescended further. I worshipped her like a star from afar off, and knew the distance between us to be as wide and impassable.

One day she came into the garden when I was at work there, and, impelled by some unknown power, as it were, I gathered and presented to her a choice bouquet of flowers; and whether it was from my guilty looks that she then discovered all, and determined to check me in the beginning, or whether she had already probed to the depths of my heart and thought I was presumptuous, I know not; but certain it is she never spoke to me after that. She had been in the habit of giving me a nod of recognition whenever she met me before this, but ever after she passed me by without even a glance; disdain within her haughty eye, and contempt upon her scornful lip. You may know that my life was as wretched as it could well be. I used to sit down by our fire, in our little cabin, after my hard day's work was done, and curse my wretched fate, and call God unjust in what I considered the distinctions he made in the human race, but I little knew then what the sequel would be.

Crowds of company, gay ladies and gentlemen, came every summer from the city to spend the season at Linton Hall, and it so happened that one summer came among the rest a young gentleman named Arthur St. John. He was reported to be wealthy, and handsome he certainly was, and it was not very long before he commenced paying devoted attentions to General Linton's daughter; and it was easy enough to see that she was as much infatuated as he was. They used to ride by our little cottage in the bright summer evenings, on the Forest road, as it was called, on their prancing horses, he bending fondly above her, whispering words of love and tenderness, and she listening to them with a flush on her cheek and a smile on her lip. I remember one evening that I stood watching them as they rode down from the Wild Glen, bathed in the golden halo that the gorgeous fires of sunset threw upon the scene, while the summer zephyrs, loaded with the perfume of wild flowers, blew back her massive hair from her queenly brow, until the scene seemed to me celestial, and she an inhabitant of celestial regions. Just then she caught sight of me, as I looked at her almost entranced, and spoke something in a low tone to her companion. What it was I never knew; but they both looked at me an instant, and then the air rang with their laughter, and I heard him say something about presumption and impudence, and I guessed what it was. It was hard to be thus tortured simply for no other reason than because I had a heart, and could not control its impulses, and when I look back upon that time it seems to me like some terrible dream.

Misfortunes, they say, never come singly, and they always come, too, when we least expect them. My mother suddenly sickened and died, and I was thus left alone, a wretched outcast on the earth. As I stood over her grave, it seemed to me that I had buried every hope. I determined to leave that spot where I had seen so much misery. I cared very little where I went. Anywhere, far away from there. General Linton paid me what little he owed me, and I struck out for the west. Railroads and steamboats were not half as numerous then as they are now, and even if they had been, I was too poor to avail myself of their advantages. I walked therefore, many a weary mile, until after many weary days of travel I found myself at the outskirts of a growing city. Here I stopped, because I thought I had gone far enough, and for the best of all reasons, because my money had given out. I had to do something. A large mansion with beautiful grounds stood before me. I applied to the owner for labor. He said he was very much in need of a gardener, but did not like to employ me without references. After hesitating for a while however, he concluded to engage me for a month, and if he liked me he would then engage me permanently, he said. I found out in a short time that he was a lawyer of extensive practice, immensely wealthy, and lived at his ease. I followed out the rule I had adopted through life, to be honest and industrious under all circumstances, and at the end of the month my employer, whose name was Parker, sent for me. He was sitting at a table in his library, writing, and he had sent for me, he said to pay me my monthly wages. He then surprised me by asking me if I could read and write. I told him that I could Thanks to indefatigable energy and perseverance, at the little cabin on General Linton's farm, during the long winter evenings when the labors of the day were over, I had acquired the rudiments of a first-rate English education. My employer then told me that during the past month he had observed me closely, and that he believed me to be an honest man. "I will tell you something more," said he, "that I have discovered. You are a young man of extraordinary intelligence. Gardening is not your proper avocation. I am doing an extensive practice at the law, and I need some one to stay in my office. I know of no one who is better suited than you. With your application and industry, within one year from now you may be admitted to the bar. You must consent to become my student."

I didn't know exactly why it was, but suddenly Judge Parker and the table seemed to become inverted, and the room went whirling round and round, and then we all seemed flying off through the air like Aladdin's castle, and the next thing I knew I was sobbing with my head upon the table.

He didn't say anything until I had told him all. What a hard time I had through life, and how this had been the only light that had ever shone on my dark pathway. Tears sprang into the old man's eyes as I told him, but he said I must never despair, and he was certain I would come out victorious.

I went into Judge Parker's office, and I studied hard, and at the end of the year, as he predicted, I obtained my license to practice law. He then asked me what I intended doing. I told him that I intended to go off to some rising place and grow up with it, "and if I ever do anything," said I, "remember that you are the man that made me."

He said that I shou'd do no such thing. He was getting old, he said, and was unable to attend properly to a great deal of his business, and he wanted me to stay and assist him. "You must be my partner;" said he, "with a share of the profits."

Again the room seemed turning around, but this time I managed to restrain my feelings, and only said:

"May Heaven thank you, sir, for I cannot!"

"Well, it wasn't long before the people seemed to take an interest in me, and they elected me to the State Legislature, and then after a while to Congress, and I always continued in the same honest, industrious course, until they had made me their Governor.

I had heard but very little in all that time from Linton Hall. I had heard that Gen. Linton had died, and Arthur St. John and Helen had married, and that the old place had been sold, and that was all.

As for my part, I was still a bachelor. Many a time amid the thunders of applause that had surrounded me, fair hands had thrown me beautiful flowers, and ruby lips had smiled, and bright eyes had glistened when I was near; but I thought of cold, cruel, haughty Helen Linton, and had judged them all alike, and had turned away.

One winter evening, shortly after I had been elected Governor, when the wind was howling outside, and I was enjoying the comforts of my room within, and wondering if any homeless wretch were out in that storm, to my great astonishment the servant ushered in a lady. It was something unusual; but I spoke to her as politely as I could, and offered her a seat, when the light fell upon her features, and notwithstanding the sunken eye and hollow cheek, to my consternation I recognized the face of Helen Linton.

To my relief, however, I found that she had failed to recognize me. No, she would as soon have looked for a form from the tomb as have looked for me in that place.

She had come, she said, on painful business. Her father had been a very wealthy man, and had left her a large property, but her husband had been very dissipated, and having run thro' with it all, and finding his family in want, in an unlucky moment had committed a forgery, for which he had been tried and found guilty, and she had come to me to plead for his pardon. She told me all this amid sobs and tears, and finally concluded by prostrating herself at my feet.

Great God! This woman, who once thought me not good enough to wipe her shoes upon, kneeling and groveling at my feet!

I begged her to rise and be seated, and I then inquired her father's name. She said it was John Linton. I then asked her if she remembered the old widow and her son, that once lived in the cabin on the Forest road, near Linton Hall.

She replied, with some surprise, that she did. Then I stood up.

"That boy," said I, "wretched, homeless outcast that he was, now stands before you."

She turned an ashen white, arose and staggered toward the door. I told her to stop, that I had something to say to her.

"Let me go," said she; "I showed no mercy to you, and I expect none."

Then my heart was touched.

"Mrs. St. John," I said, "I will pardon your husband, but upon condition only."

She eagerly asked me to name it.

"It is this," said I "that you will teach your children the folly and the evil consequences of pride; that you will guard them against its nefarious influences through life, and that your husband will likewise reform and lead a different life."

She readily assented to my requirements, and in a few moments more she was on her way home, bearing the joyful tidings to her little children.

The lesson that I taught them I hope may be a benefit to them through life.

She and her husband moved to a distant city, where he reformed, and became a useful and respected citizen, and often speaks of me, I understand, with profound gratitude.

I am a bachelor yet, and there is but one woman to whose memory I ever drop a tear. And this is to the memory of my mother.

HOME AFTER BUSINESS HOURS.—The road along which the man of business travels in the pursuit of competence or wealth, is not a macadamized one, nor does it ordinarily lead through pleasant scenes and by well-springs of delight. On the contrary, it is a rough and rugged path, beset with "wait a bit" thorns, and full of pit-falls, which can only be avoided by the watchful care of circumstances. After every day's journey over this worse than rough turnpike road, the wayfarer needs something more than rest; he requires solace, and he deserves it.—He is weary of the dull prose of life, and athirst for the poetry. Happy is the business man who can find that solace and that poetry at home.

Warm greetings from loving hearts, fond glances from bright eyes, and welcome shouts of children, the many thousand little arrangements for comfort and enjoyment that silently tell of thoughtful and expectant love, the gentle ministration that disencumber us into an old and easy seat before we are aware of it; these, and like tokens of affection and sympathy, constitute the poetry which reconciles us to the prose of life. Think of this, ye wives and daughters of business men! Think of the toils, the anxieties the mortification that fathers undergo to secure for you comfortable homes, and compensate them for their trials by making them happy by their own fireside. The sober and industrious man's home should be made a happy one.

LITTLE THINGS.—The preciousness of little things was never more beautifully expressed than in the following morceau by B. F. Taylor:

Little martin boxes of homes are generally the most happy and cosy; little villages are nearer to being atoms of a shattered paradise than anything we know of; and little fortunes bring the most content, and little hopes the least disappointments.

Little words are the sweetest to hear; little charities fly farthest, and stay longest on the wing; little lakes are the stillest, little hearts the fullest, and little farms best tilled. Little books are the most read, and little songs the most loved. And when nature would make anything especially rare and beautiful, she makes it little—little pearls, little diamonds, little days, little flowers.

Everybody calls that little that they love best on earth. We once heard a good sort of a man speak of his little wife, and we fancied that she must be a perfect little bijou of a wife. We saw her, and she weighed 210; we were surprised. But then it was no joke; the man meant it. He could put his wife in his heart, and have room for other things beside; and what was she but precious, and what was she but little? Multum in Parvo—much in little—is the great beauty of all we love best, hope for most, and remember the longest.

Locusts.

The locusts that have appeared in such large numbers within the last few days, and attract so much attention, belong to the species that appear but once in seventeen years. They are easily distinguished from those members of the family that appear each year, by the marks upon the wings, the latter bearing thereon lines resembling the letter U, from which circumstance they are in the rural districts of Pennsylvania termed "Union locusts," while the former have obtained the name of "war locusts" from the letter W, which is clearly defined, The proper name is the "American mole locust."

They generally appear about the 25th of May, and live about twenty-eight days after they have cast their shell, which is done immediately upon arriving at the surface of the earth.

Like human beings, locusts have their preferences and dislikes, and though to a casual observer they may appear to inhabit all trees indiscriminately, yet there are many they will not alight on, and when placed on them will evince considerable agitation and excitement. The peach and locust they appear to be most fond of, probably on account of the great tenderness of these trees.

Among the locusts there are two kinds of musicians, one called the "screecher" from the discordant character of its notes; the other the "organist," from its more harmonious tone. They are again divided into the black and red locusts; the former the screecher, is the stronger, and is avoided by the latter, the organist.

They have many enemies, among which may be enumerated squirrels, birds, (though when the locust is large the latter let them alone), swine, dogs, rats and cats. All these prey upon them with avidity, but their most inveterate foe is the sand wasp, who will attack them wherever found.—Attaching himself to their bodies, he rarely fails in killing them, and it is most probable that all the tales of stings inflicted by locusts may be charged to the account of this insect, as it is now believed that the locust cannot sting.

When compared with the African locust, the American mole locust is comparatively harmless to vegetation, as it is now held to be the better opinion that it subsists upon moisture alone, the destruction which they cause being traced to the deposition by the female of its eggs in the tender branches and shoots of trees and bushes, for which purpose it is provided with a strong, sharp injector, with which it perforates the bark and deposits its eggs, of a long oblong shape, in the sap. In a few days the egg is matured, when a minute fac-smile of its parent, in a chrysalis state, comes forth and descends to the earth, which it penetrates to a considerable depth, where it resides, usually in the vicinity of water, until the time arrives for it to appear, enjoy its brief existence, and propagate its species.

The chrysalis descending from a tree or plant does not always enter the earth where first reached, but will often travel a distance to find a soil more satisfactory or better adapted to its necessities.

When it emerges from the ground, which it generally does after a rain that has softened the soil, it seeks a shelter or support, where it remains, until the shell which covers it hardens when, with a muscular exertion, a rent is made in the back of its covering, and the insect crawls forth. At this time it is small and of a light color, with delicate whistle wings; but it rapidly grows and changes, one night being sufficient to transform it into a complete and full-grown locust. The male alone is the musician, and his music is performed by means of cartilaginous coats or membrances, acted upon by a powerful muscle, which, by contraction and extension, produce the sounds with which all are familiar. It is only when he has attained his full growth and strength that he can produce these sounds, and as he losses it they become less and less agreeable until they cease altogether.

It has been observed that they live in different tribes, and inhabit different sections of country, appearing in various years, but always after the lapse of the same number of years.—These tribes are of various sizes, some having been observed that stretched between well-defined lines over immense tracts of lands, but in this region they are apparently decreasing, as their numbers this year do not appear to be near so large as on their former visits.—*Phila. TIME FOR BED.—Our friend Joe is what is generally termed a bad boy, and he succeeded in blinding his mother for some time as to his imbibing propensities, and one morning she said to him, after he had swallowed some half dozen cups of coffee and as many glasses of cold water:

"Joseph, thee should drink something before thee goes to bed at night. Thee is always so thirsty in the morning."

But one night Joe came in before the old lady retired. He sat down, and with that look of semi intoxicated wisdom, began conversing about the goodness of the crops, the late unfortunate outbreak in the meeting, and was getting on very well, until he espied what he supposed to be a cigar on the mantel piece; he caught it, and placing one end in his mouth, began very gravely to light it at the candle. He drew and puffed until he was getting red in the face.

The old lady's eyes were at last opened, and she addressed him thus:

"Joseph, if thee takes that tenpenny nail for a cigar, it is time thee went to bed."

We propose to send the Globe to campaign subscribers, to the 15th of November, at the following rates:

To single subscribers, 75cts. per copy.
To clubs of 5 and less than 10, 50cts. " "
To clubs of 10 and less than 20, 40cts. " "
To clubs of 20 and upwards, 35cts. " "

The above rates will not cover expenses, but we are willing to contribute something that every voter in the county may have an opportunity to read the political news during the campaign. Our friends we hope will make an effort to get up clubs. Subscriptions invariably in advance.

☞The President vetoed on Saturday the bill to admit the State of Arkansas. The bill will most likely be passed over his veto.

☞Women are extensively employed in the English coal mines. About Wigan, it is said, there are several hundred. Their work is hard and very dirty. They are required to work from 6, a. m., to 5 or 6, p. m., with intervals for breakfast and dinner. In many instances, they dress nearly like the men, and drink and smoke and act like them.

☞Williamsport is the place for a man of taste to put in a week pleasantly. We had the pleasure of stopping in that beautiful city during last week, and enjoying the accommodations of the Herdic House, a first class hotel equal in every way to the best in Philadelphia. We had the pleasure, too, of meeting there with many old friends and acquaintances, and distinguished gentlemen. The week was one of the most pleasant of our life. Judge McCandless, presiding at the Court, and Marshal Rowley of the Western District having charge of the jury force in attendance, are gentlemen in every sense of the word, and understand and discharge their duties satisfactorily to all parties. When shall we all meet again?

☞The type of a true American is thus graphically given in Col. Badeau's Military History of General Grant: "When the civil war broke out, Grant was a private citizen, earning his bread in an insignificant inland town. He was of simple habits and tastes, without influence and unambitious. Having never been brought into contact with men of eminence, he had no personal knowledge of great affairs. He had never commanded more than a company of soldiers; and although he had served under both Scott and Taylor it was as a subaltern, and without any opportunity of intercourse with those commanders. He had never voted for a President but once; he knew no politicians, for his acquaintance was limited to army officers and Western traders; even in the town where he lived, he had not met the member of Congress who represented the district for nine successive years, and who afterward became one of his most intimate personal friends. Of his four children, the eldest was eleven years old. He lived in a little house at the top of one of the picturesque hills on which Galena is built, and went daily to the warehouse of his father and brother, where leather was sold by wholesale and retail. He was thirty-nine years of age before his countrymen became acquainted with his name."

The New York Times defends General Grant's refusal to be guided by any special policy in the event of his election, and professes to believe that the advanced position taken by the majority of the Democrats will cause the defeat of their candidates by disintegration or lukewarm unanimity.

Chief Justice Chase is said to be engaged in writing the platform for the Democratic National Convention.

Political Chip Basket.

Hon. W. B. Evarts has declined the position of Attorney General tendered him by the President.

The New York Herald continues to support Mr. Chase, and believes his nomination to be a "fixed fact."

Lewis W. Hall, Esq., made the opening campaign speech at the Grant and Colfax ratification meeting in Harrisburg on Saturday evening last.

The Hollidaysburg Register of last week declares that Louis W. Hall is not, and never thought of being a candidate in opposition to Mr. Morrell, for Congress in this district.

The Republicans of Juniata county voted, on Saturday a week, under the Crawford county system for candidates to be voted for at the next election. Col. John J. Patterson was nominated for Congress and Capt. A. H. Martin, for Assembly.

Ohio has been heard from. In the judicial district composed of the counties of Athens, Gallia, Meigs and Washington, Loomis, the Republican candidate, was elected by 1,815 majority—a gain of 237 over Hayes' majority of last fall. Keep the ball a moving.

"Be jabers!" says our friend Shamus O'Brine, "It's the 'Publicans knows how to plaze the shoulder boys! Throth and they've nominated Gen. Grant and Col. Fax togethor! Be gorra! it's powerful they be's on the military, any ways!"

Origin of "Unconditional Surrender."

Just after the great battle of Fort Donelson, on the 15th of February, 1862, the rebel General Buckner sent General Grant the following letter:

HEADQUARTERS FORT DONELSON, } February 16, 1862. }

SIR:—In consideration of all the circumstances governing the present situation of affairs at this station, I propose to the commanding officer of the Federal forces, the appointment of commissioners to agree upon terms of capitulation of the forces and fort under my command, and in that view, suggest an armistice till twelve to-day.

I am, sir, respectfully, your obedient servant, S. N. BUCKNER.

Brigadier General C. S. A.

To Brigadier General Grant, Commanding United States forces near Fort Donelson.

Grant did not want many minutes to consider his reply. In place of any such proposal, the bearer's hand had the subjoined brief and comprehensive note:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY IN THE FIELD, } CAMP NEAR FORT DONELSON, Feb. 16, '62. }

To Gen. S. H. Buckner, Confederate Army:

Yours of this date proposing an armistice and appointment of commissioners to settle terms of capitulation, is just received. No terms other than unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant, U. S. GRANT.

Brigadier General U. S. A., commanding.

After the capture of the fort, Grant issued the following order:

HEAD'QRS DISTRICT WEST TENNESSEE, } FORT DONELSON, Feb. 17, 1862. }

The General commanding takes great pleasure in congratulating the troops of this command for the triumph over rebellion gained by their valor on the 13th, 14th and 15th instants. For four successive nights, without shelter during the most inclement weather known in the latitude, they faced an enemy in large force in a position chosen by himself. Though strongly fortified by nature, all the additional safeguards suggested by science were added. Without a murmur this was borne, prepared at all times to receive an attack, and with continuous skirmishing by day, resulted in forcing the enemy to surrender without conditions. The victory achieved is not only great in the effect it will have in breaking down the rebellion, but has secured the greatest number of prisoners of war over taken in any battle on this continent. Ft Donelson will hereafter be marked in capitals on the map of our united country, and the men who fought the battle will live in the memory of a grateful people.

This was the first important Union victory of the war, and Grant was immediately nominated a major general and confirmed by the Senate; and Stanton on the 20th of the same month, wrote him these memorable words:

We may well rejoice at the recent victories, for they teach us that battles are to be won now, and by us, in the same and only manner that they were over won by any people, or in any age, since the days of Joshua—by boldly pursuing and striking the foe.—What under the blessings of Providence, I conceive to be the true organization of victory and military combination to end this war was declared in a few words by General Grant's message to General Buckner, "I propose to move immediately on your works."

Chief Justice Chase's Platform.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1868.

A special to the New York Telegram, from Washington, says the following is said to be an authoritative statement of the platform of Chief Justice Chase, and is said to have been drawn up by Judge Chase himself: Universal suffrage is recognized as a Democratic principle, the adoption of which is to be left in the several States under the Constitution of the United States to the States themselves; universal amnesty and complete removal of all disabilities on account of participation in the late rebellion is not only a just and wise measure of public policy, but is necessary to the beneficial administration of the government in the States recently involved in civil war with the United States, and to a full and satisfactory re-establishment of the practical relations of those States with other States of the American Union; no military government in any State of the Union in time of peace is compatible with the principles of civil liberty established by the Constitution, nor can the trial of any private citizens by military commission be tolerated by a people jealous of their freedom and desiring to be free; taxes should be reduced as far as practicable, collected impartially and with strict economy, and so apportioned as to bear on property rather than on labor; and while all national obligations should be honestly and exactly fulfilled, no special privileges should be allowed to any classes of individuals or corporations.

Lake Disaster.

CLEVELAND, June 21.—The steamer Morning Star, hence for Detroit, collided with the barque Cortland, thirty miles from here, last night at eleven o'clock. Both were sunk. The total passenger list of the steamer was forty, crew thirty; crew of the barque thirteen. Of those about twenty are missing, the remainder having been picked up by the steamer R. N. Rice. The officers were saved except James Merton, Clerk of the Star, who was seen to go down with Mrs. Hackett, wife of Captain Hackett, a passenger.

The South and the Democratic Platform.

[From The New York Times.]

It is not improbable that the contest which divided the Democracy at Charleston in 1860 will be renewed in the approaching convention in this city. A large proportion of the Southern delegates are evidently coming with a determination to force upon the party, if possible, their extreme views, and to commit it to a disorganizing and revolutionary policy in the construction of its platform. The same combination of arrogance and folly which eight years ago, endeavored to make everything subordinate to ultra Southern views, is already breathing forth fire and fury against the more modern and infinitely more rational Northern Democrats, who sustain a policy of conciliation.

The immediate cause of these hostile demonstrations is the proposal to exclude from the platform the dead issues which have again and again dragged the party down to defeat.—"Limit the platform," it has been suggested, "to questions living and essential; ignore extreme propositions which events have extinguished; and while affirming the constitutional principles which the party is prepared to uphold, accept as irreversible by Federal action the results of reconstruction." We could not expect to agree with even this platform in its entirety. But so far as it implies acquiescence in accomplished facts, and leaves to the States the task of amending their local governments and laws, it is creditable to the sagacity of the men who suggest it. Except on this basis, or something akin to it, the party may spare itself the trouble of making nominations. Any other platform will tumble to pieces under the weight of the most dexterous candidate.

The Southern extremists, however, scout the suggestion as treason to their rights not less than to the traditions of Democracy. They care nothing about the candidate—everything about the platform. They are willing to vote for Mr. Anybody, provided he stand on their platform. In this way they intend to re-enact the folly of 1860. They demand the privilege of dictating terms. They claim the right of saying of what stuff the platform shall be built, and how it shall be put together. Grant this and they will be satisfied. Deny it, or qualify it, and they threaten to bolt, to depart incontinently, to shake off their feet the dust of Tammany, and to retire to their States disgusted and indifferent.—We might quote many passages from Southern journals to show the accuracy of this rendering of their tone. It has, however, the briefest and most pointed expression in the following passage from the correspondence of Mr. E. Rhett, one of the editors of the Charleston Mercury, now on a visit to this city:—

"The platform to be made for the Democratic party presents many difficulties to the weak-kneed, and will be a stumbling block to many. The principles of this platform upon which the election will hinge, are of far more consequence to the Southern States, than the success of any of the candidates. The difficulty with the party is its weakness upon its own principles and its want of earnestness. I have seen and conversed with Democratic politicians here, and I have heard it openly urged, as the best policy, for the party to proclaim for universal suffrage, throughout the entire United States thus out-Heroding Herod. And yet these men call themselves Democrats, abandoning every principle of the party, in the sole hope of party spoils. Such men, however, may, I think, be regarded as mere bummers around the party. The true principle for the party to stand on is, that the Reconstruction laws are unconstitutional and to be wiped out, and that the States alone are competent to regulate suffrage within their limits, that Congress has no jurisdiction in the matter. This I think, will be the position taken by the Convention. In the meantime the South stands by, and asks but one question—what party will place us under the protection of the Constitution, and release us from illegal negro domination? If either, we sustain that party. If neither, then we have no further interest in the proceedings, and they may go to the devil together, for all we care. The whites will, in that event, be counted out, and leave the North and the niggers to settle their squabbles together about party spoils and settlement of debts."

Mr. Rhett is qualified to expound the temper of the ultraists, and he does it. He says nothing by which they are not prepared to swear. And he notifies "the week-kneed" of the North that the party must proclaim its purpose to wipe out reconstruction by Federal action—to undo all that has been done, pull down the State organizations, disfranchise the blacks, and restore the supremacy of the class that ruled before the war. He expresses the opinion that the Convention will march up to this standard; failing to do which, it and its candidates are politely bade to "go to the devil together."

Evidently, then, lively times are ahead. The Fourth of July gathering will exhibit an instructive contest for the future control of the Democratic party. The South will be there in its old colors, with its old spirit, and, we may add, with its old tendency of self-destruction. Whether the Northern Democrats will be craven or plucky, pliant or strong-willed, master or slave, a brief period will tell.

The New York Tribune is apprehensive that by illegal voting New York State will be lost to Grant and Colfax, and cites what it calls proof from the past. Greeley is indignant at the appropriation of $1,500,000 increased pay for department clerks in Washington, and fears that military officers will demand and receive a like increase. In conclusion Greeley says:

"Every one must realize that the thirst for office, now so general, has become a fruitful source of corruption and abuse. Our young men (our young women, too, alas!) forsake the ways of productive industry to worm their way into office. Our right arm aches at the recollection of the infinity of letters we have been fairly browbeaten into writing for these aspirants. Who blames them? Certainly, not we. You, members of Congress and other place-givers, are responsible to God and man for their perversion! You plunder productive labor to swell the prizes of office-seeking, and thus fill the land with borers and beggars for clerkships, &c., who, but for you, would have been honest toilers for the bread earned by productive industry! May Heaven open your eyes to the enormity of the wrong you thus perpetrate! and may the people cause you to "see stars" at the next election!"

JAMES BUCHANAN'S WILL.—The will of the late James Buchanan was filed in the Register's office in Lancaster on the 10th inst. The following are the bequests:—

Two thousand dollars to the poor of Lancaster city, in addition to four thousand dollars previously donated. One thousand dollars to the Presbyterian Church, Lancaster, of which deceased was a member. Five thousand dollars to Esther Parker, housekeeper of the deceased—being in addition to two thousand dollars heretofore given her. Two thousand dollars to Martha J. Lane, widow of James B. Lane, deceased. Peter Hillier, Mary Smithgall, and Lizzie Stoner, servants one hundred dollars each.

The books, plate and furniture to Mrs. Harriet L. Johnson, Rev. E. Y. Buchanan, and J. Buchanan Henry, to be divided equally among them, allowing Esther Parker two hundred dollars out of the amount. The balance of the estate, real and personal, is directed to be divided among his heirs as follows:—One fourth to Mrs. Harriet L. Johnson, one-fourth to Rev. E. Y. Buchanan, neither of whom is to be charged with considerable advancements which have been made to them, and balance to J. Buchanan Henry, son of his sister, Harriet B. Lane, and to three sons of his nephew, James B. Lane, deceased; Mary E. Durham, daughter of his sister, Mary Yates, deceased; to Maria B. Weaver, Jessie Magaw, (formerly Jessie Weaver), James B. Weaver, and John B. Weaver.

The testator states that "whilst feeling confidence both in the integrity and business capacity of Edward E. Johnson, the husband of my niece, Harriet Lane Johnson, I yet deem it prudent to secure to her a maintenance against the unforeseen contingencies of future years. For this purpose I appoint my hereafter named executors, Hiram B. Swarr and Edward Y. Buchanan, or the survivors of them, trustees or trustee, and direct them to retain in their hands, and invest and manage to the best advantage, 'free, and discharged from the debts and control of her said husband,' two thirds (⅔) of the amount bequested her as residuary legatee." The testator appoints Rev. Edward Y. Buchanan, his brother, and Hiram B. Swarr, Esq., to be the executor of his last will and testament. The Wheatland property is given to Harriet Lane Johnson, niece of the testator, for which she pays twelve thousand dollars out of the estate.

The will is dated at Wheatland, January 27, 1866, and a codicil of the 9th of August, 1867, provides that William B. Reed is to have one thousand dollars to pay the expenses and secure the publication of a biographical work of deceased; and to Mrs. Mary L Reed, wife of William B. Reed, the deceased gives five thousand dollars, legacy for her separate use and benefit, as a compensation for the work Mr. William B. Reed has undertaken to perform. All the deceased's private papers, correspondence, etc., are directed to be given to Mr. Reed for this purpose.

The estate is estimated at three hundred thousand dollars.

A JAPANESE MILLIONAIRE AFTER A FRENCH ANGEL.—A Paris letter, to the New York Mail, relates the following: There is a rumor abroad of a character to excite a decided sensation in the Parisian world. We hear that a Japanese, worth six hundred millions of dollars, is en route for France in search of a French girl for a wife. She must be more than eighteen years of age, and need have no fortune, but must be accomplished and beautiful, modest and unpretending—in fact a sort of model of perfection. A Polish Count, aged fifty, came to Paris a few years ago in search of the same rara avis. He found it, of course. An experienced beldame managed to foist her niece upon the Count, who had no sooner married the charming creature than he was undeceived. The fair damsel could not lift her eyes to look her wooer in the face, and the wife threatened to tear her lawful spouse's eyes out. In the selection of the trousseau, which was furnished entirely by the Count, the delicate girl would have nothing but articles of extreme simplicity; after the marriage, she made bills for $5,000 worth of cachemeres and laces. The Count (Wolna by name,) sued for a separation, on the ground of deception and treachery, and also on the grave chargo that the young miss had had several lovers before being married. The suit was in Court for a year when the Count obligingly died, leaving his widow and two children an estate of about $500,000. If our Japanese "Celebs" is not "cuter" than our Polish one, "won't he catch a tartar," which he might have had without coming more than half the distance overland.

IF A HUMBUG,

What a wonder
That the doors
Are open wide;
Ever since the
First of August
Thousands have Pain Paint applied.
Those who lie,
Or call it humbug,
Are the doctors,
Not acquaint;
For they always
Have been jealous
When their patients
Use Pain Paint.
Pile up facts
As high as mountains,
Finish the truth
Before their eyes,
But the cry
Is always humbug,
Men of science
Full of lies.

People know that ingredients composed of Cayenne pepper, turpentine, harlshorn, other, &c, will produce inflammation and pain. To purchase such trash to stop Pain and Inflammation is ridiculous. Fire will not stop heat; a dumb brute shuns the heat, and knows enough to wade in a pond of water, when wounded, to reduce, cool, and cure Inflammation and Fever.

Pimps and gamblers try to look honest, but folks can read the face too plainly. Some try to persuade the ignorant that pills, physic, &c., cleanse the blood, purge the system, and do a hundred other things equally absurd. Everybody knows that it is false, and that no medicine can purify or increase a drop of blood. Food makes blood, bone, and muscle, and is the Staff of Life. Every dose of medicine swallowed is rejected, and hurried out of the system as quick as possible. It is an enemy; yes, a deadly foe. Constipation, ill health, and weakness, are the result of dosing, dosing, dosing the stomach.—The living system has enough to do without working herself to death in expelling and kicking out the pernicious nostrums poured down the throat. Food she welcomes when she needs it; yes, asks for it. Let pill-makers and physic venders stop eating food, and see how long they can subsist on their blood-purifying, invigorating, health-giving medicines and cordials. What humbug is more transparent? A dog would feel so insulted, if offered a dose, he would curl his tail downward in scorn, and run away in utter disgust. All physical pain arises from inflammation. Put out the fire and you stop pain absolutely. You can stop pain as easy as you can quench fire with water. WOLCOTT'S PAIN PAINT extracts inflammation, heat, and fever one hundred times faster than ice. Thousands have had a practical test of its merits at the very moment of most extreme pain, and they can testify that it has not failed in doing its work. It is simple; it is harmless; it has no stain; it gives no smart; it is for sale by Druggists everywhere; and it is tested free of cost at 170 CHATHAM SQUARE, N. Y., and 022 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

My wife had an ulcer on her leg for thirteen years, caused by varicose veins, ulceration extended from her ankle to her knee, some places eating away to the bone. I have employed over twenty physicians at vast expense during this period. But all attempts at cure proved utterly abortive until I tried Dr. Wolcott's Pain Paint, which the doctors told me was a humbug. But humbug or not, it has done the work completely in less than one month, removing the pain at the first application. I kept her leg wet with Pain Paint constantly until healed. I wish we had more humbugs as useful as Dr. Wolcott's Pain Paint. I am well known in this city, any person who wants to make further inquiry will call at 101 West Street, New York, at the Hanover House, of which I am the proprietor, and I think I can satisfy them as to the benefit derived by the use of Pain Paint.

I am selling Wolcott's Pain Paint and Annihilator, and it certainly gives satisfaction to my customers.

Two more candidates announced this week.

The travel to the Springs is commencing.

With us again: the torturing flies. O, ye locusts, eat 'em up.

A young man in Altoona named John McConnell, had his arm broken while playing "skin the cat."

Mr. C. E. McKierman, of Altoona, has fallen heir to $22,000, by the will of an aged friend in Berks county.

A young man named Fowler was placed in the Ebensburg jail for stoning a passenger train, in the vicinity of Wilmore.

The Fourth of July is coming rapidly, and scarcely anybody thinks of what to do. Let's all shut up the town and go a-fishing.

The Tyrone Herald says there is talk of building a paper-mill in that place at an early day. Talk again!

350 copies of the American Agriculturist are received regularly at the post-office in Johnstown. So says the Tribune.

The tax of one cent her box on matches netted the government a million and a half dollars last year.

The expenditures of the M. E. Church in the United States on account of its bishops amounts to seventy-six thousand dollars per annum.

The Ohio Legislature passed a bill prohibiting any but regularly educated physicians from practising in the State, on pain of fine and imprisonment. Right.

A young man named Kale B. Parks, formerly of Bloody Run, was recently killed by an explosion at a steam saw mill near Cumberland.

Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, and other States of the South, are harvesting their wheat, of good quality and satisfactory in quantity.

Thomas Mullany, charged with the murder of his wife, in Cambria county, in 1865, was tried last week, in Ebensburg, and acquitted.

A young lad named Adam Campbell, residing near Newry, Blair county, was found dead in the creek about one-quarter of a mile from his home.

Ye local of the Altoona Vindicator was last week presented with a penknife. Perhaps that's what helps him in "cutting" his neighbors.

A young son of Ephraim Pennebaker of Lewistown, was buried in an ash-pile recently, and was almost suffocated before assistance reached him. He died the next day.

An eccentric clergyman lately said in one of his sermons that "about the commonest proof we have that man is made of clay is the brick so often found in his hat."

A certain "Doctor" Pelham was recently arrested near Harrisburg for "doing" the citizens of that place. The matter was amicably compromised.

A general movement is to be made at the next Legislature to increase the pay of jurymen. Two dollars a day is a paltry sum for such services, at least those who have their boarding to pay seriously think so.

Editors, like preachers, like to fish. Trout is the game of most of the Juniata editors, but we bet our old hat that we can't be beat on the golden sunnies. We and our devil caught only seven dozen the other day.

A State Convention of the Grand Army of the Republic will convene in Pottsville on the 8th of July. On the 8th there will be a grand parade and review, and on the 9th a pic-nic.

Congress, it is thought, will reduce the whiskey tax to sixty cents a gallon. This reduction, it is believed, will lessen the immensity of the frauds, but we anxiously inquire will it lessen the intensity of drinking?

While fashion commands ladies to stuff their "calves," it orders gentlemen to contract theirs in tight pantaloons. We leave our readers to decide which looks the prettiest.

A destructive flood occurred in Mifflin co., recently. Houses, bridges, mills, warehouses, forges, crops, Mifflin and Centre railroad, Kishacoquillas turnpike, etc., sustained damage, the Gazette thinks, to the amount of $200,000.

To clean paint, smear a piece of flannel in common whiting, mixed to the consistency of common paste, in warm water. Rub the surface to be cleaned quite briskly, and wash off with pure cold water. Grease spots will, in this way, be almost instantly removed, as well as other filth, and the paint will retain its brilliancy and beauty unimpaired.

The Commissioners of Bedford county have engaged the services of Edward Haviland, Esq., of York, Pa., to make plans, specifications and working drawings of the new alms house, about to be erected for that county.—The building is to be on the same plan as the York county alms house, which is considered a model, and which was designed by the above named gentleman

Support Home Enterprise.

In every community are to be found persons who affect to believe that they cannot have, in the town in which they live, a carriage, a suit of clothes, a pair of boots, or anything of that kind, made to suit them, and consequently send abroad for them. This fallacy works greatly to the detriment of a most worthy class of citizens, and sends, annually, thousands of dollars out of the community, in which the money should really be spent. It seriously affects all branches of mechanical industry and home enterprise, as it does also all other branches of trade. We have in our midst manufacturers of carriages, buggies, etc., excellent tailors, bootmakers, furniture dealers, &c., who are worthy the patronage of any community, and who execute their work in a style equal to that done in any city. Let us one and all encourage our home enterprises, and by acting upon this principle we will find a gradual enhancement of the value of property of all kinds, a well-to-do laboring class, independent mechanics, prosperous merchants, flourishing schools, and everything else that contributes to make an enlightened and happy people.

☞We would advise farmers and owners of country property generally to look to their interest when insuring against loss or damage by fire. Patronize a company that insures only your own class of property. Such is the Farmer's Mutual Insurance Company of Danville, Penna. They insure no town or village property whatever and no stores or steam property in town or country. We see no necessity for farmers being heavily taxed to pay for the burning of town property, stores, &c, when they can avoid it. By a strict adherence to this plan, this Company has accumulated a capital of over $500,000, and has paid all its losses, during its nine years existence, by making but one assessment on the premium notes of its members, that being but $2,00 to the $1000 actual Insurance on unexposed frame property. They insure at a less rate than any other reliable Company in the State. Address their Agent, C. R. Gearhart, at Huntingdon, Pa. 1t*

Accident on the Railroad.

A young man named Samuel Goodman, a flagman on the local freight, was seriously if not fatally injured on Friday last, on the Pennsylvania Railroad near Petersburg. While in the act of looking over the side of the car at his brake upon the wheels, his head came in contact with a car or truck on the other track, and he was instantly knocked to the ground, and picked up in an insensible condition. He is at present at the Exchange Hotel in this place, and receiving proper medical attention. He is recovering.

Dastardly Affair.

On Wednesday night last, a party of negroes entered the Castilian Garden, owned by Mr. E. C. Summers, and broke his aequarium, destroying some of the fishes, and committed some other depredations on his trees, shrubbery and property. The suspicions of Mr. Summers rested upon a young man named Henry Gantz who had been ordered out of the garden the same evening for disorderly conduct, and who instigated the disturbance. Two of the party were arrested and are now in prison awaiting trial.

☞John W. Bear, the "Buckeye Blacksmith," delivered an address in the Diamond on Wednesday evening last. There were a goodly number out to hear him, and the plain manner in which he expressed himself upon the political topics of the day, in favor of Grant and Colfax, was peculiarly gratifying. Of course his Democratic hearers didn't like to hear him talking so plainly, and their grief must be intensified to see the Republican and Union men so early in the field.

The Hollidaysburg Register says: "One of our subscribers, to whom we enclosed his account for subscription, amounting to a little over four dollars, handed us $10 the other day, which pays for his paper until March 16, 1871." This is certainly the right kind of response, but then it is not very pleasant to have a man tell you, "I haven't got the money now," or "I've taken the benefit of the bankrupt law," or some other excuse.—No man need make such an excuse if he pays in advance, and annually, and if he don't like a bill to be stuck under his nose, he ought to pay as he goes.

How to Keep Hams Through Summer.—After your hams have taken salt, hang them up and smoke them well; then take them down and dip them into boiling water for a few seconds; that will kill all the eggs of insects, if there should be any on them; then roll them in dry ashes while wet and hang them up again; smoke them more if you choose. This will do also for shoulders and sides, and those that do their bacon in this way will never have any bugs or skippers on their meat.

Waylaid.

We learn that our young friend Al. Maguire, formerly of this place, was recently followed from a hotel in the city of Chicago, by three men, who waylaid him in an unfrequented part of the city, inflicted some serious bruises on his person, and robbed him of his gold watch and about fifty dollars in money. The thieves have not yet been arrested.

Two little children of Mr. Wm. Strickler, of this place, started from home on Sunday last to visit a relative in McConnellstown, but got lost on the road in some woods.—They left home without the knowledge of their parents, who made search for them, and learned on Monday morning that they were at their uncle's in McConnellstown. They managed to get out of the woods before dark.

Moore's Life of Hon. Schuyler Colfax.

T. B. Peterson & Brothers, No. 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, have in press and will publish in a few days, "The life of Hon. Schuyler Colfax," written by Rev. A. Y. Moore, of South Bend, Indiana, who was for twelve years, as pastor and friend, in the entire confidence of Mr. Colfax, and had access to the files of the paper published by Mr. Colfax for twenty years, and to the Congressional Globe; knows all his past history and all who have known him from boyhood. He began this biography two or three years ago, so that it is not one of the hurried and epemeral publications so common in election years. Mr. Moore is a gentleman of fine talent and culture, and there is no doubt but that his biography of Mr. Colfax will be worthy of its distinguished subject.

The following letter from Mr. Colfax to Rev. A. Y. Moore, will explain itself:—

WASHINGTON, D. C., May, 30, '68.

"My Dear Mr. Moore:—

"As your prediction of a year ago has been realized, I have no further objection to your publishing any sketch, more or less full, of my life, you may have prepared. As you were for a dozen years a fellow-townsman of mine, and a valued friend. I suppose you know as much about my history as the public would care about knowing; and although my engrossing duties here leave me no time to revise the manuscript, I have no fear that your work will not be a faithful one.

"Yours, very truly.

"SCHUYLER COLFAX.

'Rev. A. Y. Moore, South Bond, Indiana.

It will be published in a large duodecimo volume of five hundred pages, printed from large type, and on the finest and best of white paper, with a portrait, on steel, of Mr. Colfax, executed by one of the first artists in the country, from photographs taken of Mr. Colfax within the last week; the whole bound in cloth in the most substantial manner. THE BREVITY OF LIFE.

"'Tis not for man to trifle, life is brief,
Our age is but the falling of a leaf.
We have no time to sport away the hours,
All must be earnest in a world like ours.
Not many lives, but one have we,
How sacred should that one be?"

And still how many fritter away their lives unable to fill any useful purpose, because some lingering disease unfits them for it, and they neglect or refuse to use the remedies within their reach. God in his wonderful arrangement of nature has provided an antidote for all the ills that human flesh is heir to, and by the aid of science, the medicinal virtues of certain herbs, roots and barks have been combined, and the result is now known all over the civilized world as Mishler's Herb Bitters. It thoroughly purifies the blood, invigorates the nervous fibres, elevates the standard of all the vital forces, and sustains a most healthful tone of the entire human organization. Wit, Humor and Wisdom.

☞ If every man's breast could be looked into, there would be found the image of some woman.

☞ Many a man thinks it a virtue that keeps him from turning a rascal when it's only a full stomach.

☞ How do you and your wife get on?" "O, rather badly, she gave me her hand a while ago and I thanked her; she gives it to me now every time I speak, and I'd not thank her too."

☞ The printer of the Western Gazette recently published the following notice: "Dry stove wood wanted immedintely at this office, in exchange for papers. N. B.—Don't bring logs that the devil can't split."

☞ Jonathan presented himself and his intended to the minister for the purpose of being married. Being questioned if they had been published: "O, I guess so, for I told it to Uncle Ben, and he told his wife more 'an a week ago."

☞ A young fellow once offered to kiss a Quakeress. "Friend," said she, "thee must not do it."

"O, by Jove, but I must!" said the youth.

"Well, friend, as thee hast sworn, thee may do it, but thee must not make a practice of it."

☞ We are not to suppose that the oak wants stability because its light and changeable leaves dance to the music of the breeze, nor to conclude that a man wants stability and strength of mind because he may exhibit an occasional playfulness and levity.

☞ A girl who had become tired of single blessedness thus wrote to her intended husband:

"Dear Bill: Come right off, if you're coming at all; Edward Kelderman is insistin' that I shall have him, and he hugs and kisses me so continually that I can't hold out much longer."

☞ "Have you ground all the tools right, as I told you this morning when I went away?" said a carpenter to a rather green lad whom he had taken for an apprentice. "All but the hand saw, sir!" replied the lad very promptly; "I couldn't get all the gaps out of that!"

☞ A clergyman in a neighboring city, catechizing the youth of his church, put a question from a catechism to a girl:

"What is your consolation in life and death?" The girl smiled, but did not answer. The clergyman insisted.

"Well," said she, "since I must tell you, it is a young man that lives on Water street."

☞ At a training down cast, after an order was given to "return ramrods," one of the soldiers broke from the line, and was off at full speed.

"Hallo!" bawled the commanding officer, "where are you going?"

"Down to 'Squire Muggins, to return the ramrod I borrowed of him. You said, "return ramrods."

☞ Some close observer says that all young ladies who are accustomed to read newspapers are sure to possess winning ways, bird-like dispositions, have cultivated minds, never commit suicide, nor sing "No one to love;" are free from gossiping, always select good husbands, invariably make the sweetest and best wives, and never apply for a divorce.

☞ Men judge too oft by outward show, the glitter hides the dross which lies beneath, the peasant would seek happiness in palaces, the rich, perchance, see pleasures 'mid the poor; all err, all causelessly despond, for place nor circumstance alone can make life happy, there is no lake with breast by winds unruffled, no sea by billows always unconvulsed—even so is it with man. How many noble minds are crushed beneath adversity, and pulses that erewhile warmed with a kindred glow to kindred energies, throb now to sorrow and bereavement! How many hearts that loved—loved, O, how fondly!—are doomed, alas, to live, and live alone! How many breathing beings toil and travail on to gain wherewith they may drag out existence—how many lots that look the brightest are fraught with bitterest woe!

☞ When I am Pope, I propose to promulgate some new articles of faith:

1. Every man shall be married at the age of 25, or show good cause of neglect of duty.

2. Every man shall annually tax himself one-tenth of his income, until the sum reaches the amount of ——, to procure books, journals and newspapers.

3. Wedding gifts shall never consist of luxuries—jewels, plate, etc.—but of books; and with the birth of every child, ten volumes shall be put in the library in his name.

4. It shall be the duty of every young married man to read aloud to his wife, at least one hour a day, for the first ten years after his marriage. But this shall not be construed to the prejudice of the wife's right to read, speak, lecture, etc.

5. All men who lay by their books in a self-indulgent and hidden manner, absorbing knowledge without benefit to their fellows, shall be treated as bees are that hide their nests—smoked out, and their nests broken up.

However, I will not tell you what other laws I shall promulgate for fear I shall lose votes, and fail of becoming Pope.—H. W. Beecher.

☞ A traveling book agent stopped at a tavern in New Jersey, while on a tramp. The landlady was a widow, the mother of three uncommonly plain daughters, who took a fancy to the agent. While at dinner one day, he was requested by the widow to carve the meat and serve it out to the company at the table. "My dear madam," said he, "really you must excuse me, for I do not understand carving. I am accustomed to being served—not doing service." "Not understand carving meat! Mercy on us!" ejaculated the lady, "what kind of a woman must your have been? A fine mother husband you'd make, to be sure! Why, if you was to come to me and say, 'Widow Fox, can I have one of your gals for a wife?' I would say to you, "Mr. T., you can't, until you learn to carve meat." "Give yourself no uneasiness, my dear madam," replied T., "I don't want either of them; they look too much like their mother." It is said he left the house in a hurry, and did not venture near it again, for fear of some very unpleasant consequences.

An Entire Congregation Poisoned.

NAPERVILLE, ILL., June 10.—Never before in the history of Naperville was such an excitement created as on last Sunday evening, when it was reported that the entire congregation of the Dunkard Church, who were celebrating a love feast, had been poisoned by eating meat prepared in a copper kettle and allowed to remain there until the liquid had become oxydized.—Nearly every one in the village had a friend or a relative in attendance, and consequently there was a general rush for the church in question. Upon entering the building the scene that met their gaze verified the reports. In different portions of the church were the sufferers, some sitting up, others lying down, the latter twisting themselves into all sorts of positions, rolling around the floor, and all apparently suffering the most excruciating pain. Medical attendance was at once summoned, but, as it was very limited, considerable time elapsed before all could be attended to. The stomach pump was brought into requisition, and those who gave evidence of suffering the most were considerably relieved by its use. It was found upon actual count that no less than one hundred and thirty were more or less affected, the major portion, however, but slightly, they having partaken of but a small quantity of the food. About twenty were found to be in a dangerous condition. These were removed to their homes, and every attention paid them, and before morning many of them were out of danger. Those who were but slightly affected, with some little assistance got home, and in a short time were entirely recovered. It seems that the members were, as is mentioned above, celebrating a love feast. On Saturday last a quantity of meat was cooked in a copper kettle.—About one-half of it was eaten that day, and the remainder allowed to remain in the kettle until Sunday, on account of there being no other place to keep it. Remaining so long in the liquid it became oxydized, and, when partaken of, of course poisoned those who ate it. Some of the sufferers did not recover for two or three days, but now all are pronounced out of danger. —Chicago Tribune.

Huntingdon, April 15, 1868.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire? One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebels, do not forget to call at the store of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. Store on Southeast corner of the Diamond, Huntingdon, Pa.

This valuable Bitters is composed of the essential properties of roots—the medicinal qualities of which have been carefully extracted. It is agreeable to the taste and does not leave that unpleasant taste in the mouth for hours after, that most medicines do.

As a Blood Purifier and Liver Tonic it has no equal.—It contains no calomel or other injurious drug, but is purely vegetable.

For Dyspepsia it cannot be excelled. It contains nothing injurious to the stomach, is mild and prompt in its action and effects a permanent cure by removing the cause of the complaint.

For Intermittent Fever or Chills and Fever this Bitters is a specific far better and surer than quinine.

No family should be without it as the cost is trifling compared with the suffering that may be avoided by having it at hand in case of sudden attack.
